

Good evening,

As you may have seen from the most recent university communication regarding COVID-19, JHU and Peabody is making every effort to keep members of our community safe in this challenging time. Since university guidance strongly encourages students to leave campus, we encourage all students to follow this guidance. For those students who need to remain in on-campus housing, the residence halls and dining services will remain open.

Students departing for spring break should take with them any items essential to carrying on their education from home, such as laptops, instruments, textbooks, notebooks, essential papers, etc. Students should also plan to carry home valuables and indispensable items in the event that a sustained period will pass before they are able to retrieve them easily. We are currently sourcing material to assist with moving out of the residence halls and will follow up as soon as they are available.

Residents who need to remain on campus will have continuous dining service regardless of their current meal plan as well as housekeeping in common areas that follow CDC guidelines. Additionally, there are no guests allowed in the residence halls during this time. Only current residential students who must remain on campus are allowed to access the residence halls.

For those students who will have family or friends coming to assist with your move out process, you will need to bring your belongings to the lobby and meet them there.

Please complete this form no later than March 13, 2020. Please note, access to spaces is dependent on the mandatory registration and its accuracy.
